MR. CLEVELAND AT SEVENTY

Grover Cleveland was four years past the "Osler line" of forty years before he became known outside of Buffalo. He was not yet sixty when he quitted public life. The entire period of his political prominence covered only fifteen years, a far shorter time than most of our great national figures have devoted to public service, yet in these fifteen years he made a wide reputation as a reform mayor of Buffalo, he went to Albany on a tidal wave vote, and he ran for president three times and was twice elected, something which had happened to no one else since Andrew Jackson.

Mr. Cleveland was an oldish young man, and he is now, in spite of his heavy public labor, a youngish old man. He will be seventy years old Monday. He spent the last days of sixty-ninth year shooting ducks in South Carolina. It is true, as Mr. Cleveland says, that the "wealth-mad rush of American life" has a tendency in certain circles to "impair mental and physical power." It is true that "in these times of dollar-chasing many of the most vital necessities of a normal human life are being neglected." Man is by heredity an outdoor animal, and he always suffers when he forgets it too long.

But besides praising the "simple virtues and simple pleasures that gave strength to the character of our American ancestry," Mr. Cleveland by the simplicity of his private life now, as formerly by his rugged strength and sturdy common sense in office, is a living example of the old-fashioned American statesman. He is worth a good deal to his country in that capacity.—New York World.

The great peace congress will be held in New York next month. Senator Tillman will not be one of the principal speakers.

President Roosevelt will be well qualified to go into the railroad business after he completes his term in the White House.

While in Central America Uncle Joe Cannon might give some of the belligerent states there some advice about standing pat.

It would be interesting to know whether Mayor Schmitz would have returned from Europe had he known what was awaiting him in 'Friseo. But he would have eventually come back at the state's expense.

THE HONDURAN MULE

The mule has frequently furnished a casus belli. But he has generally furnished it by his own high centrifugality, not by his national status. It was undoubtedly a bold feat of arms for a handful of thirty-five Nicaraguan cavalrymen to attempt the conversion of a Honduran mule to Nicaraguan use. Not from fear of Honduras so much as of the mule.

The locus of the mule and his status are equally left rather nebulous in the abundant diplomatic correspondence. It is alleged by Honduras and apparently denied by Nicaragua that the Nicaraguan cavalry trespassed on Honduran soil to recover the mule. It is alleged by Nicaragua and apparently denied by Honduras that the owner of the mule was really a recreant Nicaraguan who had merely taken advantage of the hospitality of Honduras to establish himself within the Nicaraguan border, leaving his mule in a condition to kick over the Nicaraguan line. In this case, the seizure of the mule would be a question of domestic policy on the part of Nicaragua, and not properly an international complication.

But against this Honduras seems, if we understand her contention, to insist that the owner of the mule is not the Nicaraguan refugee at all. As is maintained by one of the new Shakespeareans that the plays were not written by Shakespeare, "but by another man of the same name who lived at the same time," so, according to Honduras, the man who owned the mule was an unquestionable Honduran, in the peace of the republic of Honduras then and there being, although he did happen to be a namesake of the fugitive of Nicaraguan justice. It was an international outrage, against the peace of the people of Honduras and their dignity, for the thirty-five Nicaraguan troopers to lay violent hands on the violent hind legs of this unquestionably Honduran mule. But this is not a matter for two proud peoples to go to war about. Those little hands were never made to tear each other's eyes in such a quarrel. Evidently, in the interest of peace and civilization, the case ought to go to The Hague Tribunal, together with the mule, his hind legs securely hobbled so as to confine their play to a radius of three inches, and marked for identification Exhibit A.

New Land for Entry

The land office at Phoenix has notified the clerk of the district court of the opening for entry on May 6, 1907, at 9 o'clock a. m., of the following lands: Township 12 north, range 8 east (fractional); township 12 north, range 9 east (fractional).

To Reforest Pinals

Forest Supervisor Harold Marshall will begin at once the reforestation of the Pinal mountains, having received from the Fort Bayard forest station 1,000 yellow pine transplants, which are to be set out near the summit of the mountains. A nursery is also to be started and 100,000 pine seed sown on ground already prepared at the head of Sixshooter canyon.

JURISTS AGREED
BUT DISAGREED

Three Members of Supreme Court Agree that Alleged Negro Assaulter Should Have New Trial, but for Different Reasons—Gets New Trial.

Who shall decide when judges of the supreme court disagree, or rather, when they agree but disagree. Well, that's hard to determine. And with all the other judges, it is a mixed up affair entirely.

That's what happened this morning. The case was that of William Thompson, convicted of assault with intent to commit rape, in Mohave county.

Thomas was a negro porter on the Santa Fe railroad. On one of his trips through Mohave county a Chicago young woman accused him of trying to assault her.

After a bitterly fought contest Thomas was convicted and sentenced by Judge Sloan. He appealed to the supreme court of the territory for a reversal of the decision.

This morning Justices Campbell and Kent held that the decision should be reversed because of insufficient evidence. Justice Nave also held that it should be reversed, but for another reason entirely. He said that the attorney for the prosecution had made improper remarks, and for that reason Judge Sloan's opinion should not be upheld.

The fourth judge, Justice Doan, held that the original decision should be upheld. This made the members all disagree with each other, Justices Kent and Campbell being the only ones in accord. But they only constituted half the court, not a majority. It would be no good to draw up an opinion reversing the decision, for that would only be the opinion of a majority of the judges sitting. Under the circumstances the only thing to do is to remand the case back to Judge Sloan for a new trial, which was done.—Arizona Gazette.

ARIZONA'S NEW
MINE SIGNAL LAW

Establishes Uniform System of Mine Bell Signals and Goes into Effect on July 1—All Companies Obligated to Use the Same Signals.

The following is a copy of the mine signal bill which passed the legislature shortly before the closing session and was signed by the governor:

The bill is as follows:
(House Bill No. 141.)

AN ACT
To Establish a Uniform System of Mine Bell Signals, to Be Used in all the Mines Operated in the Territory of Arizona, and for the Protection of Miners.

March 9, 1907.—Introduced by Mr. Murphy. Read first time by Title, rules suspended; read second time, 100 copies ordered printed, and referred to committee on mines and mining.

Be It Enacted by the Legislative Assembly of the Territory of Arizona: Section 1. Every person, company, corporation or individual operating any mine within the territory of Arizona, gold, silver, lead, copper, coal or any other metal or substance where it is necessary to use signals by means of bells or otherwise for shafts, inclines, drifts, crosscuts, tunnels and underground workings, shall after the passage of this bill adopt, use and put in force the following system or code of mine bell signals as follows:

- 1 bell to hoist
- 1 bell to stop
- 2 bells to lower
- 2 slow bells to lower slow
- 3 bells to hoist slow, men on cage
- 3 slow bells to hoist very slow
- 2-1 bells, 1st station
- 2-2 bells, 2nd station
- 2-3 bells, 3rd station
- 2-4 bells, 4th station
- 3-1 bells, 5th station
- 3-2 bells, 6th station
- 3-3 bells, 7th station
- 4-1 bells, 8th station
- 4-2 bells, 9th station
- 4-3 bells, 10th station
- 4-4 bells, 11th station
- 5-1 bells, 12th station
- 5-2 bells, 13th station
- 5-3 bells, 14th station
- 5-4 bells, 15th station
- 5-5 bells, 16th station
- 6-1 bells, 17th station
- 6-2 bells, 18th station
- 5 bells for blasting
- 6 bells, turn on or off steam to pump
- 7 bells, accident in shaft; wait for orders
- 8 bells, turn on or off air

Engineer's signal, that he is ready to hoist is to raise the bucket or cage two (2) feet and lower it again.

Section 2. For the purpose of enforcing and promptly understanding the above code of signals, the following rules are hereby established:

- Rule 1. In giving signals make strokes on bell at regular intervals. The bar (—) must take the same time as for one (1) stroke of the bell, and no more.
- Rule 2. No person must get off or on the bucket or cage while the same is in motion. When men are to be hoisted or lowered give signal for men. Men must then get on the bucket or cage, then give the signal to hoist or lower. Bell cord must be in reach of man on the bucket or cage at stations.
- Rule 3. After signal "Ready to shoot in shaft" engineer must give signal when he is ready to hoist. Miners must then give the signal, "Men to be hoisted," and then "spit fuse," get into the bucket and give signal to hoist.
- Rule 4. All timbers, tools, etc., "longer than the depth of the bucket" to be hoisted or lowered, must be securely lashed at the upper end to the cable.
- Rule 5. The foreman will see that one printed sheet of these signals and rules for each level and one for the engine room are attached to a board not less than twelve (12) inches wide by thirty-six (36) inches long, and securely fasten board up where signals can be easily read at the places above stated.
- Rule 6. The above signals and rules must be obeyed. Any violation will be sufficient grounds for discharging the party or parties so doing. No person, company, corporation or individuals operating any mine within the territory of Arizona shall be responsible for accidents that may happen to men disobeying the above rules and signals. Said notice and rules shall be signed by the person or superintendent having charge of the mine, who shall designate the name of the corporation or the owner of the mine.

Section 3. Any person or company failing to carry out any of the provisions of this act shall be responsible for all damages arising to or incurred by any person working in said mine during the time of such failure.

Section 4. This act shall take effect and be in force July 1, 1907.
